N° 7

Dear customers and partners,

Year 2021 kicked off with the exciting news! Last month we started developing a new 14-hectare (34 acres) site in the south of Moscow. Its acquisition and construction have become the biggest investment in our 10 years business in Russia.

The ecosystem of the new campus, IXcellerate Moscow South, will unite several data centers with a total power capacity of 200 MW. The initial 1200 racks are scheduled for commissioning in the second half of 2021. Our northern campus in Altufievo is also expanding: a new data center IXcellerate Moscow Three with a capacity of 2000 racks will be launched in early 2022. During the construction of the new facilities, we plan to use the best-in-class energy efficiency and engineering solutions, including green technologies.

We see a growing demand for our services and are ready to meet it. I am confident that with your support and trust our data centres will provide unlimited opportunities for Russian business digitalization.

KONSTANTIN BORMAN,
Managing director, IXcellerate

Russian data center market 2021: demand exceeds supply

Рынок ЦОД 2021: спрос превышает предложение

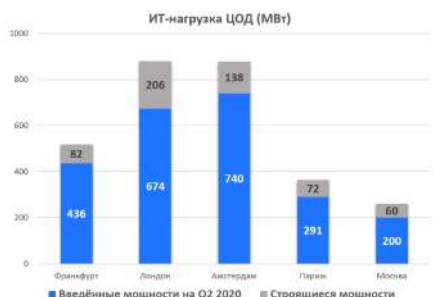

15.07.2021 10:00

The 2020 lockdown, which had a negative impact on almost all industries, stimulated an increase in demand for data center and cloud services. At the end of the year, the capacity of the Russian data center market increased by 13.2% and reached 49.9 thousand rack spaces. However, despite the positive dynamics, there is still a high shortage of capacity. In order to deliver projects on time, data center customers will have to book racks in advance.

Konstantin Borman, Managing Director of IXcellerate: "Today, many companies that need large installations have to wait, and this slows down their development. In this situation some big players are postponing their launch plans for six months. Free space in the high (Tier III) fault-tolerant segment is now very limited."

EMEA data center market – Q3 2020 overview

Knight Frank in partnership with DC Byte released the report, reflecting the dynamics of EMEA (Europe, Middle East, Africa) data center market in Q3 2020. Based on this study, Moscow belongs to the top-5 data center markets in Europe in terms of live capacity among pure commercial operators (excluding hyperscalers' own sites).

EMEA market dynamics represent the growing demand for cloud services in various countries, which is the main driver of infrastructure growth, but price largely governs market activity. Colocation remains the preferred option.

IXcellerate new brand identity

IXcellerate — your digital gateway to the largest Internet market in Europe

IXcellerate is a leading operator of commercial data centers and a home for hyperscalers in Russia. One of the Top-3 providers, IXcellerate offers on-demand colocation solutions to address individual infrastructure requirements.

This year we are celebrating a decade of doing business in Russia. Our business is growing rapidly and the company has moved to a new level. It has prompted us to take a fresh look at our brand.

Dina Nurkaeva, Chief Marketing Officer, IXcellerate:

"While working on IXcellerate brand identity we aimed to retain the continuity and recognition of the old logo making it simpler and more emotive. The brand communications and key messages continue to reflect IXcellerate values established 10 years ago. The new visual strategy allows for expert positioning both in offline formats as well as enabling ongoing communication with our target audiences in the digital field."

Our values:

- Progress and innovation
- Reliability
- Customer focus
- Continuous growth and development
- Transparency and Business ethics
